John MacArthur

Servant of the Word and Flock
Other biographies by the author:
The Forgotten Spurgeon
The Life of Arthur W. Pink
D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones: The First Forty Years
D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones: The Fight of Faith
(The Two-Volume Authorized Biography)
Jonathan Edwards: A New Biography
The Life of John Murray
Wesley and Men Who Followed
John MacArthur

Servant of the Word and Flock

Iain H. Murray

THE BANNER OF TRUTH TRUST

www.gty.org
To
The Elders, Staff, and Members of Grace Community Church
with thankfulness for the grace given to them to serve Christians across the world.
Contents

Illustrations ix
Foreword xi
Introduction: What Is an Evangelical Leader? 1
1. Youth in California 5
2. The Bible Takes First Place 17
3. The Early Ministry at Grace Community Church 31
4. Threatening Reversals 43
5. Scripture and Preaching 57
6. The Rediscovery of Old Truth 69
7. The 1980s 79
8. Across the Pacific 93
9. Controversy 111
10. Patricia MacArthur 129
11. A Correction and an Example from Russia 143
12. Grace to You 155
13. A Basket of Letters 173
14. Objections and Questions 183
15. The Changing Scene in the United States 197
16. A Visit to Grace Community Church 213
17. The Man 229

Index 241
Illustrations

Endpapers, Front: The Master’s College, 21726 Placerita Canyon Road, Santa Clarita, CA 91321, by courtesy of Lukas VanDyke

Rear: A Sunday service at Grace Community Church

Frontispiece: John and Patricia MacArthur, New Zealand, 1988

1. Jack and Irene MacArthur, 1950s 7
2. Football, John playing for Los Angeles Pacific College against California State University in Long Beach, California, Fall 1962 13
3. John marrying Patricia Sue Smith, August 1963 21
5. Father and son, mid 1960s 30
6. Map of Sun Valley Freeways 41
7. Family portrait 92
8. Patricia MacArthur 128
9. A Shepherds’ Seminar in Russia 154

Colour insert between pp. 154 & 155
10. John enjoying the Pacific
11. The first Church (1956)
12. Ground-breaking of Grace to You
13. The new Grace to You building
14. Students of the Master’s College
15. John greeting student of Master’s Seminary
16. Grace Community Church Campus Map
17. Architect’s drawing of Church Campus
18. Volunteer helpers at Grace to You
19. Don Green, Phil Johnson, and Mike Taylor
20. Four generations of MacArthurs
21. Almost the whole family, 2009
22. Dr MacArthur in the pulpit at Grace
23. Patricia with John

24. ‘Life’s Most Important Question’ 223
25. Aerial photo of Grace Community Church Campus 227
26. John MacArthur 228
Foreword

Friendship with John MacArthur over the last dozen years has been one of the happiest surprises of my life. Surprise because we live on opposite sides of the world, and because, coming from somewhat different evangelical traditions, we might not seem to be natural fellow-labourers. It was shared convictions on great truths that brought us together, as they are bringing others committed to Scripture together across the world.

Writing a biography of Dr MacArthur never occurred to me until an event in 2009. Prior to that date the elders of his church asked me to preach on the fortieth anniversary of his ministry at Grace Community Church at Sun Valley, Los Angeles, which was being marked on Sunday, February 1, 2009. I sensed that some comment by me on the ministry we were commemorating would be appropriate, but how to address that subject was not at first clear to me. Believing as we do that the pulpit on the Lord’s Day is for preaching His Word, that possibility was excluded. I therefore settled for writing a biographical sketch as a short tribute.

Unknown to me, Phil Johnson and Mike Taylor (editors working for Grace to You and members of Grace Community Church) had a volume in preparation to mark the anniversary, Truth Endures: Landmark Sermons by John MacArthur. This book was at the printers when my sketch arrived towards the end of 2008. Johnson and Taylor wrote, ‘It came unexpectedly after corrected proofs had already been sent to the printer.’ They ‘stopped the presses’ and included my sixty pages of ‘biographical sketch’. While I appreciated this kindness and honour, I was conscious that I had left too much unsaid, and that led to the book now in the reader’s hands. It includes most of that original piece with a good deal more. My hope is to pass on to others the encouragement that I have found myself in the record of John MacArthur’s life and ministry.

This is still little more than a ‘sketch’: a full portrait must await a later date and come from another hand. It is not the time for a full biography while a person’s life is still in progress. John’s ambition is to minister the Word of God to the end of his life; in his phrase, ‘to die with his boots on’. His father was spared to serve until he passed ninety years of age; whether our friend lives to that age or not, he believes it is a duty to keep ‘growing’ as long as life lasts: ‘People sometimes point out to me that what I’ve said on one tape doesn’t agree with what I said on a later tape. My response to them is that I am growing. I did not know everything then, and I do not know everything now.’ So, as he said on another occasion, ‘You’ll never be able to evaluate the ministry of John MacArthur until all the evidence is in.’

While I have not written these pages in conjunction with John, the aid of a number of people in his congregation has been indispensable. Especial thanks are due to Rick Holland, Phil Johnson, and Don Green. Mr Johnson’s knowledge of unpublished source material is unique; I could not have written without it, and it is my hope that he will himself one day write on the ministry in which he has so largely shared. Staff members, Pat Rotisky and Catherine Curry, have been a great help to me, and numbers of others at Grace Community Church have encouraged us in various ways. The days which my wife and I have spent at the church, and at Grace to You, will ever be treasured memories. In a congregation where the blessing of God is known there will ever be affection between the people, and others find a ready welcome. So it has been for us at Sun Valley.

I am indebted to John MacArthur for the liberty to quote him as extensively as I do; and to Mrs Patricia MacArthur for her valued measure of input and for allowing the use of family photographs. Banner staff have given their customary best support in the production of this title, and my friends, Ian S. Barter and John R. de Witt, gave helpful comment on my draft. Jean, as ever, has kept everything running happily in our home, while I only looked after the computer.

IAIN H. MURRAY
Edinburgh,
August 2010
Introduction

What Is an Evangelical Leader?

Prized by John MacArthur is an old edition of John Foxe’s Acts and Monuments of these latter and perilous days (1563), the book which first printed the story of William Tyndale, translator of the English Bible and martyred in 1536. Tyndale’s enemy, Thomas More, complained of him that he was ‘both nowhere and everywhere’: ‘nowhere’ because few knew his actual location; ‘everywhere’ because his testimony was reaching all parts of the English-speaking nations. John MacArthur would never think of it, but the words suggest something of a parallel to me. Through hundreds of radio stations his voice is heard over a thousand times daily around the world; his books are to be found in thirty-five languages; yet the local scene where he spends the great part of his life is little known by most who read him or hear him broadcast. He is also ‘nowhere and everywhere’.

The element of personal obscurity is of no concern to MacArthur. He stands in that genuine evangelical tradition which has no time for the creation of religious celebrities. When Paul says, ‘Let a man so consider us, as servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God’, MacArthur understands him to be saying; ‘Don’t make anything out of me. I’m just a servant of Christ. I’m an under-rower, a third-level galley slave; I pull my oar, and that’s what I’m supposed to do, nothing worthy of special attention.’

Tyndale was ‘a gospeller’, or, as we would say, an evangelical. I use the term in its traditional meaning. In brief, an evangelical is a person who believes the ‘three Rs’: Ruin by the Fall, Redemption through Jesus Christ, and Regeneration by the Holy Spirit. It follows that an ‘evangelical leader’ is a person who stands out in the advancement and defence of those truths. The title does not necessarily imply success judged by numbers and immediate results. On that basis neither Paul nor Tyndale might qualify.

1. An evangelical leader is one who leads and guides the lives of others by the Scripture as the Word of God. He seeks to repudiate every other form of influence and pressure. His great concern is to teach Scripture accurately, and to see lives submitted to its authority.

2. An evangelical leader inspires the affection of followers because they learn Christ through him, and see something of Christ in him. They follow him because he follows Christ. And they love him because he loves them in Christ’s name. ‘The apostle Paul summarized the spirit of the true leader when he

---

1 Hard to Believe (Nashville: Thomas Nelson, 2003), p. 46. An ‘under-rower’ is a favourite simile with MacArthur and he explains it further in The Master’s Plan (Chicago: Moody, 1991), p. 39: ‘There are several words in the Greek for servant, and Paul used the one that best conveyed the idea of a lowly servant (GK., huperetes, “an under-rower”).’ It was the name for the slaves on the lowest deck of a three-tiered ship propelled by oars.
Introduction: What Is an Evangelical Leader?

wrote, “Imitate me, just as I also imitate Christ.”

And what is to be imitated the Scriptures do not leave in doubt: ‘Almost every time Scripture holds up Christ as our example to follow, the stress is on his humility.’

3. An evangelical leader is a man prepared to be unpopular. From the days when Ahab said to Elijah, ‘Are you he that troubles Israel?’, faithfulness to Scripture will not bring the approval of the majority. Dr MacArthur says bluntly, ‘You cannot be faithful and popular, so take your pick.’ A quest for popularity is a very short-term thing. For an evangelical, ‘success isn’t measured in hours, or even centuries. Our focus is fixed on eternity.’ Success ‘is not prosperity, power, prominence, popularity, or any of the other worldly notions of success. Real success is doing the will of God regardless of the consequences.’

4. An evangelical leader is one who is awake to the dangers of the times. Not every Christian has the distinction that was once given to the tribe of Issachar, ‘The men of Issachar had understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do’ (1 Chron. 12:32). There are periods in church history when the leaders have seriously mistaken the way in which the cause of Christ is to be carried forward. The signs of the times have been misread. A true evangelical leader is raised up to provide God-given direction.

5. An evangelical leader will not direct attention to himself. He personally owes everything to Jesus Christ. As a sinner he sees the need to live in a spirit of repentance all his days. He knows the contrast between what he is in himself and the message that he preaches: ‘We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us’ (2 Cor. 4:7). ‘God chooses whom He chooses in order that He might receive the glory. He chooses weak instruments so that no one will attribute the power to human instruments rather than to God, who wields those instruments.’5

---

It follows that genuine spiritual leadership will lead others to the conclusion: ‘Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but to Your name give glory, because of Your mercy, because of Your truth’ (Psa. 115:1).

5 Twelve Ordinary Men, p. 13.
Youth in California

John Fullerton MacArthur Jr. was born in Los Angeles, California, on June 19, 1939. Rather inaccurately ‘Junior’ was often to remain appended to his name, for the truth is that many a ‘John MacArthur’ had gone before him. One of the MacArthur family by that name had emigrated from Glasgow, Scotland, to Canada in 1815. This immigrant’s son and grandson were also ‘John’, and it was not until a fourth-generation member of the family line was born about 1885, and named Harry, that the Christian name changed.

Harry MacArthur, the grandfather of our subject, was working as a chief telegrapher on the Canadian Railways at Calgary, Alberta, when he became a Christian. His wife, Olivia Mary Fullerton, was the daughter of a Thomas Fullerton, who was minister of the Presbyterian Church of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, on the east coast of Canada. Fullerton had come from Scotland where his father had also been a Presbyterian minister. There was thus Scottish ancestry on both sides of the marriage of Harry and Olivia.

1 Thomas Fullerton was minister of St James Presbyterian Kirk in Charlottetown, 1893-1921, a ministry interrupted while he served in the Canadian army during the Boer War.
The Banner of Truth Trust originated in 1957 in London. The founders believed that much of the best literature of historic Christianity had been allowed to fall into oblivion and that, under God, its recovery could well lead not only to a strengthening of the church today but to true revival.

Inter-denominational in vision, this publishing work is now international, and our lists include a number of contemporary authors along together with classics from the past. The translation of these books into many languages is encouraged.

A monthly magazine, The Banner of Truth, is also published and further information will be gladly supplied by either of the offices below.

3 Murrayfield Road, Edinburgh, EH12 6EL, UK
PO Box 621, Carlisle, Pennsylvania 17013, USA
www.banneroftruth.co.uk

www.gty.org
EVANGELICALISM DIVIDED
A Record of Crucial Change in the years 1950 to 2000
Hardback, 352 pp.

'Iain Murray's historical overview of the fortunes and misfortunes of evangelical Christianity, especially in England, between 1950 and the century's end-time, will stir up both an approving and a dissenting readership. But no one can contend that it ignores some of the most vital theological issues of the time and the conflicts surrounding them. The narrative is well documented, and it details not only conflicts of perspective but inconsistencies and alterations of views in some of the leading participants in the events of the day.'

CARL F. H. HENRY

PENTECOST TODAY
The Biblical Basis for Understanding Revival
ISBN-13: 978 0 85151 752 0
Hardback, 242 pp.

'If you only ever read one book on revival — and all serious Christians should read at least one — read this one. Drawing on a wealth of pastoral wisdom, an almost unrivalled grasp of the history of God's people in these islands and a thorough working knowledge of the Puritans, Iain Murray is well placed to give a definitive statement of the biblical basis for revival. The fanatic and the sceptic and all shades between will be challenged and helped by the clear presentation found here.'

GRACE MAGAZINE

LLOYD-JONES: MESSENGER OF GRACE
Hardback, 288 pp.

CHAPTERS: The Lloyd-Jones Legacies; Preaching and the Holy Spirit; The Evangelical Use of the Old Testament; Skeletons in the Cupboard; Raising the Standard of Preaching; Lloyd-Jones and Spurgeon Compared; A Controversial Book, Joy Unspeakable; 'The Lost Leader' or 'A Prophetic Voice'?; The End of the Puritan Conference; Some Convictions of Lloyd-Jones in Miniature; Inventory of Lloyd-Jones's Sermons; An Analysis of the Sermons on Ephesians; Is the Reformation Over? A Review.

This is not a repetition of material in Murray's two-volume biography of Lloyd-Jones; it concentrates on three main themes in his thought and ministry, and includes much unpublished material.

www.gty.org
THE OLD EVANGELICALISM
Old Truths for a New Awakening
Hardback, 226 pp.

Chapters: Preaching and Awakening: Facing the Main Problem in Evangelism; Spurgeon and True Conversion; ‘Christ our Righteousness’ – God’s Way of Salvation; The Cross – The Pulpit of God’s Love; What Can We Learn from John Wesley?; Assurance of Salvation; Christian Unity and Church Unity.

‘There is much to stimulate us to godliness in this volume. I thank God for lain Murray’s fifty years of service to the church and the influence of his books for posterity.’

MARK R. BROWN, NEW HORIZONS

HEROES
Hardback, 320 pp.

‘The reviewer found these lessons edifying, instructive, challenging and encouraging. We heartily agree with the author’s dictum: ‘The study of history is vital to the health of the Church.’ The book is an excellent holiday companion and a good fireside read. It is heartily recommended.’

DONALD MACDONALD, THE RECORD

THE UNDERCOVER REVOLUTION
How Fiction Changed Britain

W. R. Inge, writing in the first half of the twentieth century predicted what kind of nation would come into being if the outlook of many of the modern novelists was allowed to change British culture: ‘No God. No country. No family. Refusal to serve in war. Free love. More play. Less work. No punishments. Go as you please. It is difficult to imagine any programme which, if carried out, would be more utterly ruinous to a country situated as Great Britain is today.’

‘lain Murray has put his finger on the turning point that sent western culture down the path of immorality. It is a persuasive explanation that we need to hear.’

JOHN MACARTHUR

www.gty.org
A SCOTTISH CHRISTIAN HERITAGE
ISBN—13: 978 0 85151 930 2
Hardback, 416 pp.

'Informative, challenging and encouraging, this survey of the spiritual inheritance of Scotland provided an invaluable three-part introduction to Scottish Church History. It first introduces significant individuals. The second part illustrates the contribution the Church of Scotland has made to missionary enterprise, and the third deals with four Church issues.'

Derek Prime, Life and Work

WESLEY AND MEN WHO FOLLOWED
ISBN—13: 978 0 85151 835 0
Hardback, 288 pp.

Leading Calvinists of the nineteenth century, such as J. C. Ryle and C. H. Spurgeon, who stood closer to the blessings of the eighteenth century revival, were admirers of Wesley. In William Cunningham’s British and Foreign Evangelical Review, it was said of Wesleyan Methodists, 'With all their errors of opinion, and all their faults of administration, they have done more for the propagation of the gospel at home and abroad, in England and America, and among the heathen, than any other sect at present existing.' Yet too many present-day Calvinists have supposed there is nothing important for us to learn from Wesley and leading evangelists who followed him. Murray has found much value in knowing them.

A DAY’S MARCH NEARER HOME
AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF J. GRAHAM MILLER
Edited by Iain H. Murray
ISBN—13: 978 1 84871 064 1
Hardback, 352 pp.

This book will surely endure as one of the few outstanding Christian autobiographies of the twentieth century. Graham Miller, lawyer, missionary, pastor and preacher, did not write for publication. But certain of the value of his autobiographical records, Iain Murray edited his friend’s material after his death, counting it a high privilege to do so. Dr Miller was a man so much loved that the nation of Vanuatu held a day of national mourning when his full life of ninety-four years came to an end. The title ‘A Day’s March Nearer Home’ comes from a favourite hymn learned in his youth in New Zealand. While likely to be of special interest to ministers and missionaries, there is much here to appeal to all.